Our high school graduates speak out

EDITOR'S NOTE: The PINE CONE asked Larry Challis, President of the student body at Carmel High School, to write this article for our readers on his graduation. Larry will be going to Monterey Peninsula College and then plans to study law.

By LARRY R. CHALLIS

When first asked to comment on some of the problems facing our nation, as seen by a graduating high school senior, I wondered if I were the best choice for a representative of the Class of 1970. I questioned whether it would not be more interesting to interview a student who already has plans for taking part in anti-war demonstrations, or perhaps one who feels violence is the only tool available to bring about change. Upon further consideration, however, I decided the views of a college-bound student, raised in an upper middle class background and belonging more or less to the "straight" majority of the student body, would be more revealing, especially in a community such as Carmel.

Our generation is faced by a composite of age-old problems on a space-age scale. Pollution and overpopulation are problems that have plagued mankind since the beginning of history, but never has the necessity for a working solution been as pressing as it is now. It seems that we are doomed to be crowded out of existence if we are not first poisoned by our polluted environment. For the first time in history, our medical knowledge has provided us with controls such as contraceptives, yet we are asked by some to believe that this safeguard, available to curb the population growth, is immoral and wrong. Is it not more immoral and wrong to bear children when the family can't afford them or when the parents just don't want another child?

Our American tradition of having large families was started out of necessity when there was a high mortality rate, and the tradition has carried over into today even though our medical knowledge has increased at an astonishing rate.

"If you don't want to become involved, then for your own sake, get out of the way and let us try!"

Measures that once seemed particularly harsh, such as medical sterilization after a certain number of children and planned parenthood, will soon have to become commonplace if we are to curb our population growth. More and safer contraceptives, more lenient abortion laws, revised adoption laws and, if necessary, government intervention all must be used. My generation must be willing to sacrifice some luxuries that we have taken for granted, such as bearing an unlimited number of children. I predict that in my lifetime having more than two children will be considered both morally and legally wrong. We can no longer foster the idea that our rapidly advancing technology will continue to make our lives easier and more enjoyable without our giving anything in return.

DISGUST, FEAR, INADEQUACY

In problems as pressing as pollution, our population growth, and war, my generation often feels emotions of disgust, fear and inadequacy because it seems that until we are 21 we can do little about problems which we must stop now. In areas such as pollution, it is too late if we must wait until we are 21 to stop the destruction of forests, animals and waters that are being destroyed daily. We must tackle the problem with knowledge, money and sacrifice. The knowledge can be taught in schools. The money will have to come from taxes, perhaps from the space program, and the sacrifice must come from everyone. Condominium and apartment living will have to replace backyards and large houses if we are to save the little wilderness that is left for ourselves and future generations.

When asked if I believe in our democratic system I can only answer that I would not be going into the field of law if I did not feel it to be a working system and the best system available. However, because I believe in a democratic system does not mean I will not attempt to change something if I feel it needs changing. Those who say peaceful demonstrators are anti-American are saying, in effect, that we are as much a servant of our government as the strictest Communist government. They are saying that trying to change or show your disapproval of something is undemocratic. It was not our generation who first drew up our Constitution; yet when we use our democratic system to the extent that we claim the right to legally question, and if necessary, challenge the system, our loyalties are questioned. Our only alternative is to sit back and let everything go with or without our approval—and this is as revolting to me as blowing up the White House or murder.

VIOLENCE NOT TOOL FOR CHANGE

When asked if I favor violence as a tool for change, I can honestly and easily answer no. Violence asks for revolution, and revolution is very unstable. We are extremely lucky we had strong leaders when our first revolution arrived. I would not like to give up our law system to something as uncontrollable as revolution again if I could help it.

I fear one other thing besides world problems like war and overpopulation, and that is apathy. I hope the search for a new way, the restlessness, and the creativity shown by my generation will not get lost with age. I hope we do not turn out to be a part of the problems we so faithfully demonstrate

My generation also feels the pride it is to be part of America and its freedom and fine heritage. But isn't the reason so many Americans have sacrificed in both wartime and peace so that we may change for the better when the time arrives? Well, the time has come, and it's leaving us behind to die in our war-torn, overpopulated, decaying society and environment. We ask that everyone express their opinions, and that you allow everyone else the right to express theirs also. But back up your opinions with your actual support and with the facts. Sacrifice now so that we will have a tomorrow to reap the profits in. If you don't want to become involved, then for your own sake, get out of the way and let us try!

What 'matters most' to Carmel High graduates?

High school graduation is traditionally a time for self-evaluation and high anticipation. It is a time for taking stock and setting goals, for breaking the last ties with childhood and embarking on an independent course.

In trying to capture the mood both of what has been and what may be, the Pine Cone last week asked several graduating seniors at Carmel High School: "What matters to you now, at this point in your life? What do you really care about?"

The question was broad enough to encompass everything from immediate practical needs to a broad philosophical statement on life.

Aside from the interesting and varied individual answers, the poll as such produced one significant fact: no student was afraid to answer or to be quoted. They answered openly, thoughtfully, without fear or embarrassment.

If they carry this candor and concern with them in the years ahead, they, their classmates and their country will be well served.

"My main thing in the next few years is I really want to expand in creativity ... I'm working mostly for self-discipline, trying to gather myself together. In everything I do I find I try to develop self-discipline. I really have to get in myself before I can go out. I'm going to a small college on Maui where I'll have the opportunity to learn through experiencing different kinds of people, through the interactions of all these people. I feel I could be a force in that college, rather than just having it be a force on me. I really like to use my body as an expression of creativity. Please turn to Pg. 2

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

As an old-timer in the newspaper business, and as a one-time editor pro tem of The Carmel Pine Cone, please accept my congratulations on what I consider a most welcome aggressiveness in the news policy as evidenced since you took over the newspaper.

I think your recent stories telling in detail some of the problems inherent in the pollution of Carmel Bay and Lagoon, not to mention Monterey Bay itself, are noteworthy. I personally spent several days gathering material for a series of five articles published by the McClatchy Newspapers in Fresno, Modesto and Sacramento. (Tear sheets were sent to your predecessor several weeks ago.)

You are doing a fine job in keeping Carmelites abreast of the problem and the proposed solutions. I am somewhat surprised, however, that there still are some who think the extension of Carmel's outfall, plus secondary treatment of sewage from Carmel and from Pebble Beach are the ultimate solutions.

Personally, I subscribe to the plan advanced by, among others, Al Hart, the superintendent at Monterey's plant, who envisions a master collection system tying in all cities in Monterey County bordering on the bay or the ocean, and centralizing treatment of all sewage in Monterey's new plant. From there, Hart thinks it wise to pump the discharge into the hills back of Fort Ord, rather than dumping the treated material anywhere into the Bay or the ocean.

Several marine biologists, with whom I discussed the problem, also subscribe to this, or any plan that precludes using the ocean as a dumping ground for treated sewage, or any other material that could add to the overall pollution problem.

My interest in what ultimately is done is more than cursory. I own a home in beautiful Carmel and plan to retire there.

As regards my association with The Pine Cone, I served two happy weeks as editor some years ago when Clifford Cook still published the paper. I was filling for the vacationing Marjorie Lloyd and truly enjoyed the experience.

Best of luck for the future.

Regards,
Karl M. Kidder

Dear Sir:

The middle of May we went to California for two weeks vacation, visiting many beautiful places. Among them was Carmel where we were directed to Point Lobos.

My wife and I felt the visit was very rewarding but we were shocked to find several dangerous spots in the paths. I reported one in particular to the guard at the gate and he told me he was well aware of it, and then added that he could show me several more dangerous parts of the paths. He was most courteous. Then he explained that they have no money to improve the paths, and CAN'T GET ANY MEN TO DO THE JOB. A state government can do anything it wants to.

It seems like a terrible shame that some one must be seriously injured or killed before you take action. If it has not been brought to your attention, it has now. I am sending copies of this letter to various leading newspapers hoping the editors will agree with me that California should not tolerate such conditions in a major scenic attraction.

Sincerely,
A. E. Smith

Dear Editor:

Again we are at war, not a declared war but none the less a war and our casualties lists continue to grow. Perhaps in our eager patriotism we have missed the answer because it is a simple one! What the world needs is more spiritualism and less materialism! Only then the crosses will not continue to grow row upon row.

The Veterans of World War I is a national chartered organization chartered by Congress for the benefit of the old Vets and their dependents. Unlike other organizations our membership can only be replenished by those who served in WW I and like the Grand Army of the Republic we will someday fade into the memories of history.

If you are eligible to join we want you, old soldier, to join with us. Each month you will secure a copy of the national newspaper "The Torch." From that paper I have taken the liberty to quote from a recent article on Memorial Day.

"Listen for the sound of the drum and bugle! Memorial Day 1970. On this day we will reflect on the need of wars and near wars. A day dedicated to those young men and women who answered their country's call.

"To the wives, mothers and children there is no answer. Unfilled hopes and dreams can have no answer, and the bereaved can only place their weaths and grieve. Somewhere some one will light a candle to a lost memory that is upon them and unbidden will come the word was it worth it... and the answer must be Yes!

"So long as there is an America as set forth by our founding fathers our America will not die, and the light of the candle will be the beacon light of people all over the world who in a world of oppression and want will see that light."

Dear Editor:

How'd you like to do another editor a favor?

I think I lost my diamond stickpin in Carmel on the morning of Tuesday, May 12. Ours is an afternoon

Heart transplant surgeon to speak in Carmel June 24

The noted heart surgeon and organ transplant pioneer Norman E. Shumway, M.D. will be the featured speaker at the 6th annual dinner meeting of the Central Mission Trails Heart Association at the La Playa Hotel in Carmel. Heart volunteers and other interested members of the public are invited to attend.

Mrs. Joseph Reeves of Carmel, chairman of the association's annual meeting planning committee, announced that Dr. Shumway's talk will highlight the meeting the evening of June 24th. He will speak on "Experiences With Transplantation of the Heart."

Dr. Shumway, Professor of Surgery at Stanford University School of Medicine, is a graduate of Vanderbilt University and the University of Minnesota. He was an Established Investigator of the American Heart Association from 1959 until 1962, during which time he carried out many pioneering experiments in organ transplants, leading toward the achievement for which he is most widely known, the successful transplantation of the human paper, so we go to work early. At the fine motel where we slept, they have no coffee shop, and a sort of Continental lunch isn't served until about mid-afternoon.

So I went down to Sambo's pancake restaurant (and they were good). A pleasant high school youth led me to it, and we got there just after the 7 o'clock opening. A very agreeable waitress took care of us—a rather chunky woman—the kind who makes you feel at home.

I had one of these new $7.50 broad ties and didn't want to spill anything on it while sitting at the counter eating and had not put the tie on yet. So I had put the valuable pin in my right hand "ticket pocket" of the coat. That's the little pocket inside the side pocket.

Later, when I reached for it (after I had left Sambo's) the pin was gone. This is not a charge.

After arriving in San Francisco's St. Francis hotel we telephoned back to Sambo's and they were very helpful. The waitress remembered me, and just when I ate and where I sat.

I always put my tieclasp in the same pocket with the diamond pin, and when I eat, I take the tie clasp out and use it to fasten my napkin. I could have flipped the stickpin out when I drew out the tieclasp; but I've always taken great care to check to make sure the stickpin is still in my pocket after I take the tie clasp out; and I listen, in case it drops.

It has been in the family just 60 years. It is set in platinum filigree, with bars.

Size, about one carat; and of high quality. Maybe somebody is waiting to see if it has been found.

Yours,
F.F. McNaughton
Pekin, Ill.

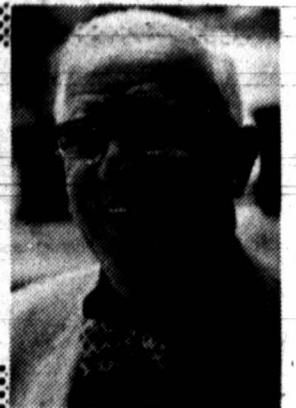

DR. NORMAN SHUMWAY heart.

The dinner on June 24th is an official function of the Central Mission Trails Heart Association, but members of the public can arrange to attend by contacting the Heart office—541-A South Main Street, Salinas; 424-6007.

Mrs. Reeves said that in addition to the speech by Dr. Shumway the dinner will include awards to volunteers for achievements in heart diseases control programs or fund raising. Officers for 1970-71 will be elected and installed.

the mayor's report

By BARNEY LAIOLO

I'll take my son off the hook this week and type my own report. After all he will be graduating from Carmel High this Thursday so I feel he has earned his reward.

I wish to take this time to offer my congratulations to all graduates and wish them success in whichever endeavor they have chosen.

This week we have seen the completion of the road work on Santa Lucia and also on San Antonio. The remaining hole near Ocean Avenue will be completed in about two weeks. Thanks again to all the tolerant people.

We have received the "information leaflets" which will be passed out to visitors to inform them of our laws. I feel certain this will help many to better understand why we have laws both in their interest and of the local people as well. The American Legion has offered to help in distributing these leaflets for us. Many thanks to this fine organization for their interest.

The "Artists In Action" display at Sunset on Saturday was well received and a good number turned out. More of these will be forthcoming. Bill Burleigh, our city attorney, is in Washington, D.C. making the necessary arrangements so that he can appear in the Supreme Court to represent Carmel in the Diefendorf Case. I wish him every success.

The sale of the Purity Store to one of the banks leaves me a little bewildered. This no doubt will change the complexion of Mission and 6th Street. The store has served the area well and I am certain many people will miss it.

I was fortunate in being able to attend the formal gathering of the representatives of underprivileged countries who are here for a five week training course at the Naval Postgraduate School. They represented many countries such as Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, Greece, Portugal and many others. This was an excellent display of American hospitality presented by the Monterey Jaycee's.

I received my first letter and tape from Herb Blanks. He is about to arrive in Buenos Aires. They are enjoying their leisurely sea voyage and taking full advantage of their well-earned rest.

In closing, just a reminder that school will be out soon. There will be more children about the streets. Please exercise great caution while driving and and let's make it a happy summer.

That's 30 for this week.

"I'd like to find security, like finding a job I can count on. I want to meet people and get to know people and be friends with everybody. Mostly I just want to be happy in whatever I do. I'm really concerned about Vietnam but I'm kind of lost -- I hear different sides and I don't know what to believe. But maybe I'll find out and get involved later. It's really great to be out of school. It's a challenge to get out and face the world. It's going to be a lot more to do and lots more responsibility. I hope to travel when I find out what I want to do." DENISE DAVIES, Torres St., Carmel, going to MPC.

"I'm concerned about the American system. I've been doing research on prisons and court systems for my final paper in humanities. It's ugly, and nobody really cares. It's really a protective system we live ... you can't even visit a real prison ... the treatment of prisoners is bad, really bad. I passed out pamphlets about the prisons here and almost everybody turned away. Nobody cares. They have a nice easy life here, and when they get out, the real world is going to knock them over. They say all this isn't true, that it doesn't exist. That's something I'm really scared of - I wish people would react, even if they don't believe me. I don't mind being put down, if they just won't sit back and talk a little and do nothing." DENIS LONGFELLOW, Middle Canyon Road, going to MPC to study conservation and wildlife management.

"The thing I care about is to get students at home more involved in things. Students here are really involved and care, but in Danish schools, they aren't thinking about anything outside their academic work. I'm going to try to get students involved in pollution problems. We have the same problems but no one is doing anything. Of course I'm concerned about the war, too, and if I lived here, that would be the main thing. I'll try to open the eyes of people just like my eyes have been opened." RENE MADELAIRE, exchange student from Denmark.

"What matters to me is getting a basis in practical courses for what I'm going to be doing. I want to get some land and a house and live as independently as I can. I want to learn now so I can be self-supporting later. I'd like to build my own house and do everything myself, and that's what I'd like to learn here first. I hope to go up north to Mendocino County where land is less expensive." JANN JASEAU, Berwick Drive, going to MPC in September.

GRADUATION WITHOUT TEARS or, The Reluctant Graduate

All over the peninsula and particularly in Carmel this week, you can't throw a stone without hitting someone who has graduated from kindergarten, high school or college. Everyone is a graduate nowadays. At least everyone puts on a cloak or gown. No one is left out, even though they can't spell cat. The prevailing myth is that everyone who puts in the required number of courses gets a diploma.

And we wonder why some of the more intelligent and honest of the students this year, who have graduated with distinction, are reluctant to attend their school ceremony where everyone is a winner; and rather than rent a cap and gown, take part in graduation exercises, dances and parties, they pick up their diplomas unostentatiously and head for their college vocations. Those who have graduated with insufficient credits, pick up their diplomas and head for their summer vacation, often permanently extended.

A typical graduation exercise might go something like this: The speaker is a clergyman who believes in love and the Beatles and dressed in full canonicals, plays hymns, old and modern, on the electric guitar. In order to relate the better to his hip audience, he has learned their jargon and thus he adjures them in dirge-like pop that like a bridge over troubled waters he will ease their minds.

Then he delivers a little homily on hope being the certainty about the reality of the possibility.

And finally in a great diapason of suffering religiosity, he closes with the surefire exhortation to love one's neighbor by showing him one's teeth. This establishes soul contact or knowledge that he uses Pepsodent.

Then he comes to the address proper. He announces that he is going to talk about Che Guevara, the students' freedom pin-up, the pill and unwed mothers, whereupon the ceremony is broken up by a riot of students who resent being told by a member of the establishment that Che is a pill, and that their mothers are unwed.

To avoid such contentious topics, I thought I would like to prepare future speakers at graduations for the perils of trying to bridge the generation gap with antic stuff that made speeches sure-fire hits when they were young with Andy Hardy.

I mean, imagine exhorting today's students to be more like us; inspiring them to build bigger offshore oil wells, or to produce more atomic waste, or to keep the country free—to join the current war-of-the-month club, or to use up all our national fresh water to cool nuclear power plants. I mean just about any reference to establishment achievement would be received with cynical incredulity.

The one subject that confounds the hip generation is "Nonsense." It baffles them.

"A GRADUATION ADDRESS FOR ALL SEASONS"

(With apologies to Marx, Groucho not Karl)

"Man and boy, I have known Elmer Pratt, founder of the Pratt High School, Carmel, for 30 years. He has known me for 30 years. That makes a total of 60 years and brings us down to the fiscal year of 1860, when conditions were as bad as they are becoming now. My father was out of a job at the time, the farmers were complaining about the prices, and the Prices, who lived next door, were complaining about my father.

"Two weeks later troops were massed on the border, ploughshares dropped forty points, and in a little log cabin, a boy, who was later to be President Lincoln, was playing with his tin soldiers, little reckoning that an assassin's pistol was lying in wait for him. That little assassin, ladies and gentlemen, was Elmer Pratt.

"Elmer Pratt first saw the light of day in the sleepy village of Carmel and died in Pacific Grove. Three days after he was born, he took the silver spoon out of his mouth, put it in hock and took the train for San Francisco. At the depot the train was wild with joy as the crowd pulled out, and twenty minutes later, a tiny dot appeared in the sky, broke through the clouds and brought the plane down in one of the prettiest accidents ever seen on the shores of Tripoli.

"That little accident, ladies and gentlemen, was Elmer Pratt.

"When we next clap eyes on Elmer, his horse had disappeared. Up and down the country went the word, 'Pratt has taken a fall.' From the Mississippi to the Rhine, from the green fields of England to the white wastes of the Yukon, sounded the tocsin.

"A new five cent cigar made its appearance. Little buzzing knots of idle scoffers speculated, dubbed it the South Sea Bubble.

"Pratt's fall," sneered his opponents.

"Came the day of his great experiment, clear and windless. On the windless Pratt is hoisted into the cockpit of his cigar, while a thousand throats are hushed.

"Will it fly?" is the unspoken query in the hearts of the multitude. Slowly it strains at an gnat, swallows a camel and rises. It's off to the roar of its exhaust. Exhausted, in a far corner of the field with tears in her great brown eyes and a lump in her throat, a horse is watching.

"That horse, ladies and gentlemen, was Elmer Pratt.

"And so graduates of the Elmer Pratt High School, we are gathered here today to honor that famous Carmel explorer, Elmer Pratt. Let us hope that one day the frozen wastes of the Yukon will give him up. Let us hope at least that someone will give him up. I gave him up a long time ago."

Well it's either this kind of approach to today's student graduates, or the piffle of pop philosophizing over troubled waters to ease your mind or the twaddle of hope being the certainty about the reality of the possibility.

Dear Reader, the choice is yours.

Scientists warn of bay pollution; bond vote Aug. 4

With an eye toward the potential pollution problem in the Carmel Bay area, the Carmel Sanitary District Board met Tuesday night and approved a $2.4 million bond issue to be presented for special election on August 4. The Board has hopes to institute the proposed changes in the Sanitary District as soon as possible.

"As soon as possible" means an operational system by the end of 1971. Harold Arnot, chairman of the District, said that the proposed expansion of the water rehabilitation plant includes funds for the maintenance of the existing plant during construction of the new secondary treatment improvements, including allowance for possible repairs. Optimistically, Arnot hopes that bid plans may be put out immediately, and that construction will begin by the end of the year, if the bond is passed.

Pebble Beach will participate in the project, footing one-third of the outlay cost and one-third of the future operating expenses. The total cost of the improvement proposal is $3,770,000, which brings Carmel's share to a shade over $2.5 million. However, limited funds are available to compensate for the difference or possible contingencies. Arnot also mentioned, "if we can obtain any government assistance, the bond will be reduced accordingly."

Earlier Tuesday, at the Hopkins Marine Station, Dr. Walton Lee, director of the station, disclosed the findings of the marine studies carried out this Spring. Lee set a mildly foreboding tone to the presentation, by commenting: "All too often we have ignored the early phases of the problem, which always gets worse with the passage of time. It is giving us a warning as to what is happening and what could happen later on."

The text of the report follows:

1. Inshore currents are complex in the vicinity of the Carmel outfall. The effluent is carried inshore, moves a bit north, then heads south toward Monastery Beach.
2. Water currents just offshore of the kelp beds located off the outfall flow south toward Monastery Beach and the NE end of Pt. Lobos. Drift bottles released well out in Carmel Bay all moved south toward Monastery Beach and came ashore on the beach and on the rocky point just north of the beach.

3. Measurements of some chemical constituents of sewage (chlorine, phosphate, nitrate, etc.) show that these materials move south and inshore toward Monastery Beach and NE Pt. Lobos, reflecting the main movement of water masses.

4. A small number of coliform bacterial counts was made. These showed high variability and were not clearly correlated with water movement.

5. In the vicinity of the outfall, marine plants (algae) are fewer in numbers of both species and individuals. Numbers increase more rapidly with increasing distance to the north of the outfall, and more slowly toward the south where the sewage flows. Plants near the outfall show evidence of damage.

6. In the vicinity of the outfall, marine animals are also fewer in numbers of both species and individuals. Like the plants, numbers here increase more rapidly with increasing distance to the north of the outfall and more slowly toward the south where the sewage flows. The effect of sewage on animal distribution is even greater than the effect on plant distribution. Experiments in the laboratory clearly show the lethal effects of chlorinated and unchlorinated sewage on intertidal animals.

7. The red seaweed, Prionitis is common in the Monterey and Carmel Bay areas, and is able to exist near sewage outfalls. Like other plants, Prionitis uses sunlight and minerals and carbon dioxide to manufacture organic food and produce oxygen. Plants near the outfall proved highly variable in rate of photosynthesis; definite increases in rate of photosynthesis occurred toward Monastery Beach. These increases may be related to the presence of nutrients from the sewage.

8. Residual chlorine levels within the range measured in the vicinity of sewage outfalls were observed to cause a marked decrease in photosynthetic activity of a red, a green, and a brown seaweed in the laboratory. The brown seaweed tested was Macrocystis pyrifera, the major plant in our kelp beds; it proved particularly susceptible to chlorine damage.

Research summarized here was carried out by Douglas Grey, James R. Schreiber, Michael M. Nakata, Joseph E. Welsh, Eric P. Bachelor and the staff of the Hopkins Marine Station of Stanford University.

Present at the meeting was David Kennedy of Kennedy Engineers in San Francisco, who are the engineers for the Sanitary District and plant. He remarked that the study indicated the "same findings that we assumed you would find."

HUGH HANNON, left, president of the Carmel Bach Festival, and Howard Bucquet, member of the Bach board, look over the new Festival poster which will soon be in evidence all over the community. Also seen in Edythe Plamondon's scale model of Bach seated as his organ. The Festival opens July 17 at Sunset Center.

Crocker Bank to move into Purity Market site

Crocker-Citizens Bank has tendered an offer on the property currently owned by Purity Stores Inc. on Mission and 6th Streets in Carmel. The offer was accepted last week, and the sale will be finalized when the property clears escrow on June 30. The purchase price has not been disclosed, and no date was given for the relocation of bank facilities.

The future of the existing bank building on Ocean and Dolores remains undecided. According to bank vice-president and properties manager, Ed Chandler, Crocker-Citizens is "not negotiating with anyone at present for the sale of the Ocean Avenue property."

Phil Hiaring, public relations manager for Crocker-Citizens, told the Pine Cone that there "are no plans for an immediate move from the present bank facilities." The prospective use of the ex-Purity property also is undecided. "We don't know yet whether we'll remodel, rebuild, or simply move in when the time comes," he said. "The situation now is in a state of flux."

There are unconfirmed rumors that Douglas Glenden, who recently acquired the Carmel Plaza and other properties, is interested in the Ocean Avenue structure, but the officers of Crocker-Citizens denied knowledge of any impending transaction. Meanwhile, the Purity store is preparing to vacate the existing premises by June 27. There are no plans for a local relocation of the store.

Wally Ehlers, assistant vice-president and treasurer of Purity Stores, stated this week: "We regret leaving Carmel after so many years of warm relationship with the community, however, the value of the property would no longer justify the continuance of a market operation. So, reluctantly, we agreed to the sale of the property. We hope that our many friends will enjoy our new modern market on Lighthouse and David Avenues, on the boundary of Monterey and Pacific Grove."

the conscience of Carmel

BY GUNNAR NORBERG

Would you have believed it if anybody had told you that Carmel would officially ask the State Division of Highways to get busy building a new highway anywhere in its vicinity? I wouldn't—until just last week when the Carmel City Council actually passed—and passed unanimously—a resolution urging state highway authorities to "expedite the construction" of what could become another macadam monster down the still unscarred Hatton Canyon just east of the present state highway 1 opposite Carmel.

The traditional Carmel view has been to resist at every possible turn the advance of state-oriented, heavy-footed highway building anywhere near Carmel. In fact, just four years ago, the Carmel City Council demanded—and it was joined in the demand by the Monterey City Council—that the state legislature act to forbid the State Division of Highways even to consider any freeway construction beyond the point at the top of Carmel Hill where it now ends. Despite that demand, authority for freeway building right down to the Carmel River and just beyond, still stands.

And now, unbelievably, the Carmel City Council has asked the Division of Highways to get busy desecrating the still unmarred forested Hatton Canyon area. Why?

Various "whereas" clauses in the city's resolution try to say why—that state highway people have drawn some tentative plans and made a tentative model of the sort of highway that might someday build in Hatton Canyon and that these "meet the approval" of our city officials; that the traffic is growing and accidents occur along the present Highway 1; and that scenic-highway status has been given to the segment involved.

Was this all the "why" there was? When that question was put to the City Council from the audience in the City Hall, just before the Council acted, another "why" was given. And what was it? That the State Division of Highways had removed the proposed Hatton Canyon highway from a state-wide priority list on which it had previously appeared.

When I recall my own eight years on the Carmel City Council, I would have thought such an elimination from a priority-list would have delighted the members of any Carmel City Council. It would simply have meant that—at least for a few extra years—the Hatton Canyon would have been spared as the unsullied green-belt it still is.

Particularly should this have been true, because the potential peril of a full freeway has still not been removed from the portion of highway which might be built in the Hatton Canyon, since the amendment of state law sought by both Carmel and Monterey back in 1966 still hasn't been enacted nor is it in process of being enacted. As things stand now, some kind of freeway and or expressway and or scenic highway could be driven through the so far unspoiled Hatton Canyon. At the very least, the City Council should have insisted upon the enactment of the limiting amendment demanded in 1966, before even thinking of asking the State Division of Highways to cut its first tree, to tear up the first turf, to bring its first bulldozer into the sylvan treasure which Hatton Canyon still is.

Today the world is beginning to understand a word called ecology, and to be concerned about the preservation of important elements in the environment—an understanding and a concern which has guided the thinking of Carmel city fathers long before it began to affect the thinking of city leaders generally.

Preservation of the Hatton Canyon in its natural state for as long as possible—and not for as brief a time as possible—should be the view of Carmel's city government.

It can only be hoped that the Carmel City Council will quickly rescind its uncharacteristic "come hither" request to the too often unfeeling State Division of Highways, which all too frequently has needed no such invitation to construct its huge concrete monoliths. COPYRIGHT 1970 - GUNNAR NORBERG

Newman-Bell Nuptials

MRS. MICHAEL L. NEWMAN

Michael Louis Newman of Carmel and Virginia Louise Bell of Chandler, Arizona were married May 23 in evening ceremonies at the First Methodist Church in Chandler, then received their guests at the Bell ranch under moonlight.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Newman of Carmel, and the grandson of Mrs. Gladys R. Johnston of Carmel and Mrs. Louis J. Newman of San Francisco. Mrs. and Mrs. Samuel Heffelfinger Bell of Chandler and La Jolla are the bride's parents.

Bridal attendants included Mrs. Robert Colman and Mrs. Thomas Corn, both of San Francisco; Mrs. Samuel H. Bell, Jr. of the Bahamas, Louise Bell of Minneapolis, Allyson Robbs of Santa Barbara, Thayer Hoffstot of Pittsburgh, Rosemary Gill of New York City, Mrs. Michael Fischer of Carmel; Ann Fall, Debbie Gilbert and Susan Norton, all of Phoenix.

The bride's nieces, Sally and Polly Corn, were flower girls, and her nephew, Alfred Corn, was the ring bearer.

Acting as best man was Randy Newman, the bridegroom's brother.

Ushers were Samuel Bell, Jrs, Timothy Girdner, Peter Bolton, Steven Guy, Michael Fischer, Thomas Corn and Robert Colman.

The new Mrs. Newman attended school in Switzerland and was graduated

Summer instrumental music program in Carmel schools

The Carmel School District will offer a six-week program of instrumental music classes beginning on June 22. Beginning, intermediate, and advanced classes will meet on Monday and Wednesday mornings at Tularcitos School and on Tuesday and Thursday mornings at River School. High school classes will be held Friday mornings at the high school.

Brass, woodwind, percussion and string (orchestral) classes will be offered. The district provides some of the large instruments for the student at no cost.

A Tuesday night band is also being scheduled for junior and high school students. Adults may also participate in this band. This band will rehearse at the high school.

For further details and information call either Tularcitos School or River School or Henry Avila, music director at Carmel High School.

Collage classes start Monday at Town House

Absolute beginners as well as practiced artists will be among William F. Stone, Jr.'s students starting a Collage Class Monday at Town House, Lincoln and Eighth.

Interest in the class is high and Carmel Foundation members and prospective members who wish to participate are advised to come prepared to work June 15.

Stone, an art instructor at Carmel High School, suggests students bring the following: subject matter either in mind or picture; mounting board; Polymer Medium (or Elmer's Glue); medium sized bristle brush for glue; and a box or basket for materials. No scissors, Stone requests.

An artist who exhibits in local galleries and shows, Stone is a third generation Californian. He received his B. A. degree from the University of California, his teaching credentials from San Jose State College, and a certificate in medical and scientific illustration from the School of Medical Illustration in Boston.

Classes and programs at Carmel Foundation's Town House are free of charge because of the Carmel community's generous response.

More Helpful Tips from PG&E:

"Clip and Save"

Every girl should know how to re-fuse.

If you should find yourself powerless, and your neighbors are too, it's probably a local power equipment failure. Call us and we'll restore service. If the power is off in your house only, it's probably a blown fuse or an open circuit breaker. You may have too many appliances on one circuit or outlet. Unplug a few. Or it could be a short-circuit, so check for damaged cords and loose plugs. If your lights are still off, check your main switch. If it is the fuse type, the switch should be turned "off" before you replace a fuse. Replace any fuse that has a smoked-up window or melted metal strip. (Make sure new fuse is the same amperage as the old one—no more, no less.) If you have circuit breakers, follow the instructions on the panel. Many homes have both fuses and circuit breakers. If your electricity is off for any period, don't open your refrigerator or freezer, so frozen foods will stay frozen longer. If the food starts to thaw, add dry ice.

Still in the dark? Call us.

P.S. The average daily cost of gas and electricity to run a typical household year 'round is less than a couple of packs of cigarettes.

Local YMCA camping for boys 6 to 9 in Carmel Valley

The YMCA is offering a beginning camp experience for 6 to 9 year old boys. Three different Y-Day Camp sessions are scheduled locally to begin June 22, July 13, and August 3. Each session will run 2 weeks, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

Special bus pick up and delivery service is being provided as far north as Marina and south to Carmel.

The Y-Day camp will be held in Carmel Valley and include swimming instruction, special educational trips, crafts, an overnight campout, and a special parents' campfire as a part of the comprehensive program.

Camp leadership consists of full-time professional

YMCA directors with trained youth and young adult counselors.

Space is still available for all of the three sessions. Interested persons are encouraged to call the YMCA at 373-4166 for more information.

Persons wishing to help boys attend Y-Camp this summer can do so by purchasing cans of YMCA Butter Toffee peanuts being sold by boys earning their way to camp, or by contributing to the YMCA's Campership Fund.

GENERATION GAP

A 12-year-old Carmel boy, son of divorced parents, was having an uncomfortable restaurant luncheon with his visiting father. Obviously the fortyish father's visits were infrequent.

"How do you like school?" and "What sports do you go out for?" made up the father's forced conversation, while the boy's replies were unnaturally polite and strained.

Arrival of a pair of menus brought respite. "What would you like, son?" "Oh, I guess I'll have a hamburger and French fries."

"Hey, I want to get you something better than that! How about this steak?"

Politely, the boy acquiesced. When the steaks were served, the youngster went after his with a 12-year-old appetite.

"There!" exclaimed the man. "Isn't that better than hamburger?"

"Well, it's good," his son conceded, his face revealing a struggle, "but I'd rather have had the hamburger."

PETSHOPPING?

This is the time of year to buy puppies and kittens. The Pine Cone classified section has some excellent buys in lovable pets.

PARTY PLANS . . .

by Phyllis Jervey

Many of us do not realize that our Carmel Mission was visited by the French navigator Commandant La Perouse in 1786. This astute explorer led an expedition of scientists, map artists and scholars on two French vessels and came into Monterey waters in order to carry back the first information to Europe concerning our area.

Fortunately Mrs. Jehanne Bietry-Salinger Carlson, long time resident of Carmel and leader of the local Alliance Francaise, is the general chairman of French Week June 14-20. Mrs. Carlson has put all her energy and amazing organizational talent into making the first of The Old Monterey Bicentennial's foreign weeks a cultural event.

Instead of a parade, Mrs. Carlson with her members of l'Alliance Francaise of the Monterey Peninsula will welcome the Consul General of France and Madame Claude Batault at the airport. We are now having great fun arranging French costumes for this June 14th special occasion.

Attended by community officials, a flag raising ceremony will next take place at Jules Simoneau Plaza with Army and Navy color guards. Then we will go to the Carmel Mission and place tricolor flowers around the plaque dedicated to the memory of Commandant La Perouse.

One of the highlights of French Week will be the display of Aubosson Modern Tapestries by France's outstanding artist Mathieu Mategot at the Pacific Grove Art Center. There also will be original manuscripts of those famous French authors from Victor Hugo to Malraux in the Monterey Library and Casa Manana windows. The most important party will be an official luncheon at the Presidio of Monterey Officers' Club. Equally appetizing will be the French Wine Tasting party including a gourmet buffet at the Carmel Art Association's Gallery on Dolores and 5th.

This brings us to "Party Plans" raison d'etre...parties and people. Jehanne entertains with flair and eclat. Expediency is now necessary with so many of her committee coming by. So, spur-of-the-moment dishes are quickly created by this always gracious hostess. Your party reporter has enjoyed these impromptu gatherings and admired the ease with which this busiest of Carmel's "know-how-to-do" produces a mini-menu with maxi taste.

French wine with all of us speaking French and feeling fine. Jehanne who is firm about doing everything by herself in her cuisine permitted Phyllis (pronounced Felice in the Alliance) to "observe."

SARDINE SPECIALE

Depending on how many guests, take medium-sized sardines from their tins (off the emergency pantry). Drain the oil. Heat oven to 400 F. Saute rather thick slices of French bread (on hand in refrigerator always) in butter and olive oil on both sides. Place sardines (2 or 3) on each slice, sprinkle heavily with grated Parmesan. Place in oven...when bubbling, remove and scatter finely minced parsley and chives over tops with some lemon juice.

TOMATOES a la Jehanne

In a cast iron skillet put more butter than olive oil, but be sure to use both. When heated add cut up lean bacon, saute until bacon is only golden, not brown. Watch closely. Sprinkle with flour and stir. Add peeled fresh mushrooms, cut in quarters. Have beautiful skinned tomatoes ready at the last moment so as not to lose their precious juices and add. Never overcook.

YWCA obtains local office

At a recent meeting of the Y.W.C.A. organizing committee, Mrs. Julian F. Rowe of Carmel announced success in obtaining a temporary office for the local Y.W.C.A. chapter. The office was formerly used by the Junior League and is located on Highway 1 and Valley Way in the annex to the Carmel Convalescent Hospital.

Also at the meeting, Dr. Margaret Bennett of Carmel Valley, program chairman, explained the plans for volunteer summer jobs, which will include some training, for high school girls. The girls will be placed in different communities depending upon their home addresses. The program includes work with such agencies as the Red Cross, the League of Women Voters, and the Salvation Army.

LOCATED AT THE MOUTH OF CARMEL VALLEY

CARMEL CLOSEUP: BOB EVANS, JR.

"Living in Carmel and getting rich don't go together."

By JUDITH A. EISNER

Saying that someone is "in the theatre" arouses visions of stardom, glamor, Broadway openings and names up in lights. Despite the increasing sophistication of our time, the theatre is still some magical place where talented and beautiful people perform; the headiness of stardom isn't thought of as working.

The lure of the stage isn't confined, however, to those few who act upon it, and backstage one finds a talented and dedicated corps of equally stagestruck folk who take tremendous satisfaction in providing the foundation upon which the stars' performances are built. These men and women are no less "in the theatre" than the actors.

Very much "in the theatre" is Bob Evans, Jr., a young man who is very likely to shake up any preconceived ideas one may harbor about young people today and people in the theatre as a whole.

For Bob is young—three years on the safe side of 30—and not only is he in the theatre, he owns one, and a successful one at that. Four years ago, Bob and his father bought the already well-established Studio Theatre in Carmel.

Bob's involvement in theatre dates back to his student days in Texas. At the University of Houston, he majored in theatre and minored in television. He was actively involved in community theatre in Louisiana and at the University, where he did lighting and set design. Bob's interest is, primarily, a backstage one.

OPERA SETS

By the time he was 21, Bob went to work for a scene designer in Texas who specialized in building sets for operas. Bob worked on the frame scenery while the backdrops and costumes were made in Italy. The completed sets were then rented to theatres wanting to stage an opera. If, for example, a touring opera company came to Tulsa, the local theatre could rent "everything but the bodies" necessary to put on a performance. Bob's firm stocked seven complete operas, including all the costumes. He remembers that Otello was one of the biggest operas, requiring two semi trailer trucks and an 18 foot van to move the sets to a theatre. They shipped the sets as far as Seattle, Washington.

After his set-building experience, Bob worked for a TV studio in Louisiana for a year. "I sort of fluctuated back and forth from theatre to T.V.," he explains. Then he took a job designing sets in Midland, Texas; during the time he worked there he was negotiating to buy the Studio Theatre, a five-year-long attempt until they were successful, finally, at Christmas, 1965. He took over operations in July, 1966.

VISIT CARMEL

Bob's introduction to Carmel predates his acquisition of the theatre by some years. He and his family had visited regularly over the last 15 years, and his parents are now retired here. Bob married lovely Shelly Martin a year and a half ago, on Bob's birthday, and Shelly just happens to be the daughter of Royden Martin, from whom Bob had bought the Studio. Mr. Martin didn't lose a theatre, he gained a son!

About seven years ago the Studio became a dinner-theatre and Bob has continued to run it this way. He feels that his biggest contribution to the Studio is that it now stages a greater number of plays and gets more of the new ones.

"The theatre to me is entertainment," Bob says. "I don't want to sit and think or see a weighty drama." He concedes that there is a need for serious drama, but defends musicals and comedies on the grounds of their financial success. "If it weren't for the popular and financial success of them, nobody could afford to stage heavy drama. The theatre-going public wants light entertainment," says Bob. "You can read the newspaper any afternoon and be depressed."

His personal preferences work well with the dinner-theatre idea. People hardly enjoy mixing tragedy or serious plays with their dinner. Of course, people dine first and then see the play; there is no eating during the performance.

SHOWCASE

Bob considers the Studio a showcase for local talent and tends to deprecate his own role. "I don't think that I'm that important a part of it—I'm sort of a backstage thing," says the producer. "I really get the most pleasure out of scenery and lighting work. Producing is more of a business and not as much fun," he adds, but also admits that four years ago when he bought the theatre, he depended on his father for help. "I was a theatre person, not a business person, but that's changing now."

A measure of the Studio's continued success is that 75 per cent of its patrons are local residents, with a good number of "regulars" coming from San Francisco, King City and "all over." The Studio is community theatre, one of only two live theatres in Carmel, and it has community support. During the winter season, it offers Friday, Saturday and Sunday performances, but during July and August, shows are given daily, Wednesday through Sunday. There is an early Sunday curtain so that elderly viewers can get home at a reasonable hour. Bob takes pride in saying that the average age at any performance is over 50.

When asked about the state of theatre in Carmel,

Bob has many thoughts. "I don't think the community could support more theatres," he says, "what with two in Carmel and the community theatre productions put on by the military, the colleges, and with a new one to open soon on Cannery Row." Discussing the professionalism of the productions, Bob doesn't make any pretenses. "There are some outstanding things in all the shows and some things lacking. We are not professional; we don't pay the actors—we can't pay the actors. People here won't go to a local theatre and pay New York prices even if it is a professional production. But they will go to New York and San Francisco and pay. We have to price ourselves in line with the movies, which are getting $2.50 to $3.00. At a $3.00 admission, and seating 100 people, we simply can't afford to pay a troupe of actors."

"We tell ourselves we're a culture spot," he continues, "and there are lots of artists, writers, painters and the like. But everyone is so busy doing his own thing he doesn't have time for the other cultural things." Bob says this matter-of-factly, without a hint of bitterness. He adds, happily, that Carmel has an "exceptional reservoir of talent; of course, that's part of the artist colony thing. There are lots of people with theatre background living here—but now it's a hobby with them."

Like so many others who have chosen to live in Carmel, Bob says, "It's great having a big city like San Francisco this close, but I couldn't live there. I'm not oriented to big-city life. I love it here and wouldn't go anywhere else."

Bob contends that the "artist colony thing" is a myth of the past, and that Carmel is now in danger of losing even the memory of that past. "We've gotten very tourist conscious. Tourists come here because we were an artist colony, but we're rapidly becoming a tourist trap."

"I don't see why we can pass an ordinance and enforce it in court preventing people from lying on the grass and can't prevent..." and here he mentions a snack shop. "We're going to look like another Miami Beach someday, especially if Cannery Row goes the big hotel scene."

"When tourists walk down

cent of the businesses are owned by members of the Association. "Businessmen have to care. If we let Carmel change in the way it's going, we aren't going to have our businesses any more. People won't come to Carmel, because it will no longer be Carmel."

Youth and business aren't mutually exclusive, Bob feels. He says that more and more young people are running businesses in Carmel. They've decided they want to live here, too. "Nobody's getting rich, but you sort of make up your mind that living here and getting rich don't go together. Everyone thinks I have a goldmine here," he adds, "but our cook takes home more money every month than I do!"

Is a young, interested

the street with their hot dogs and candied apples, Carmel isn't the same any more. You even notice it in the way people come to the theatre; they don't dress any more. They come in bermuda shorts. We can't have any dress requirements..."

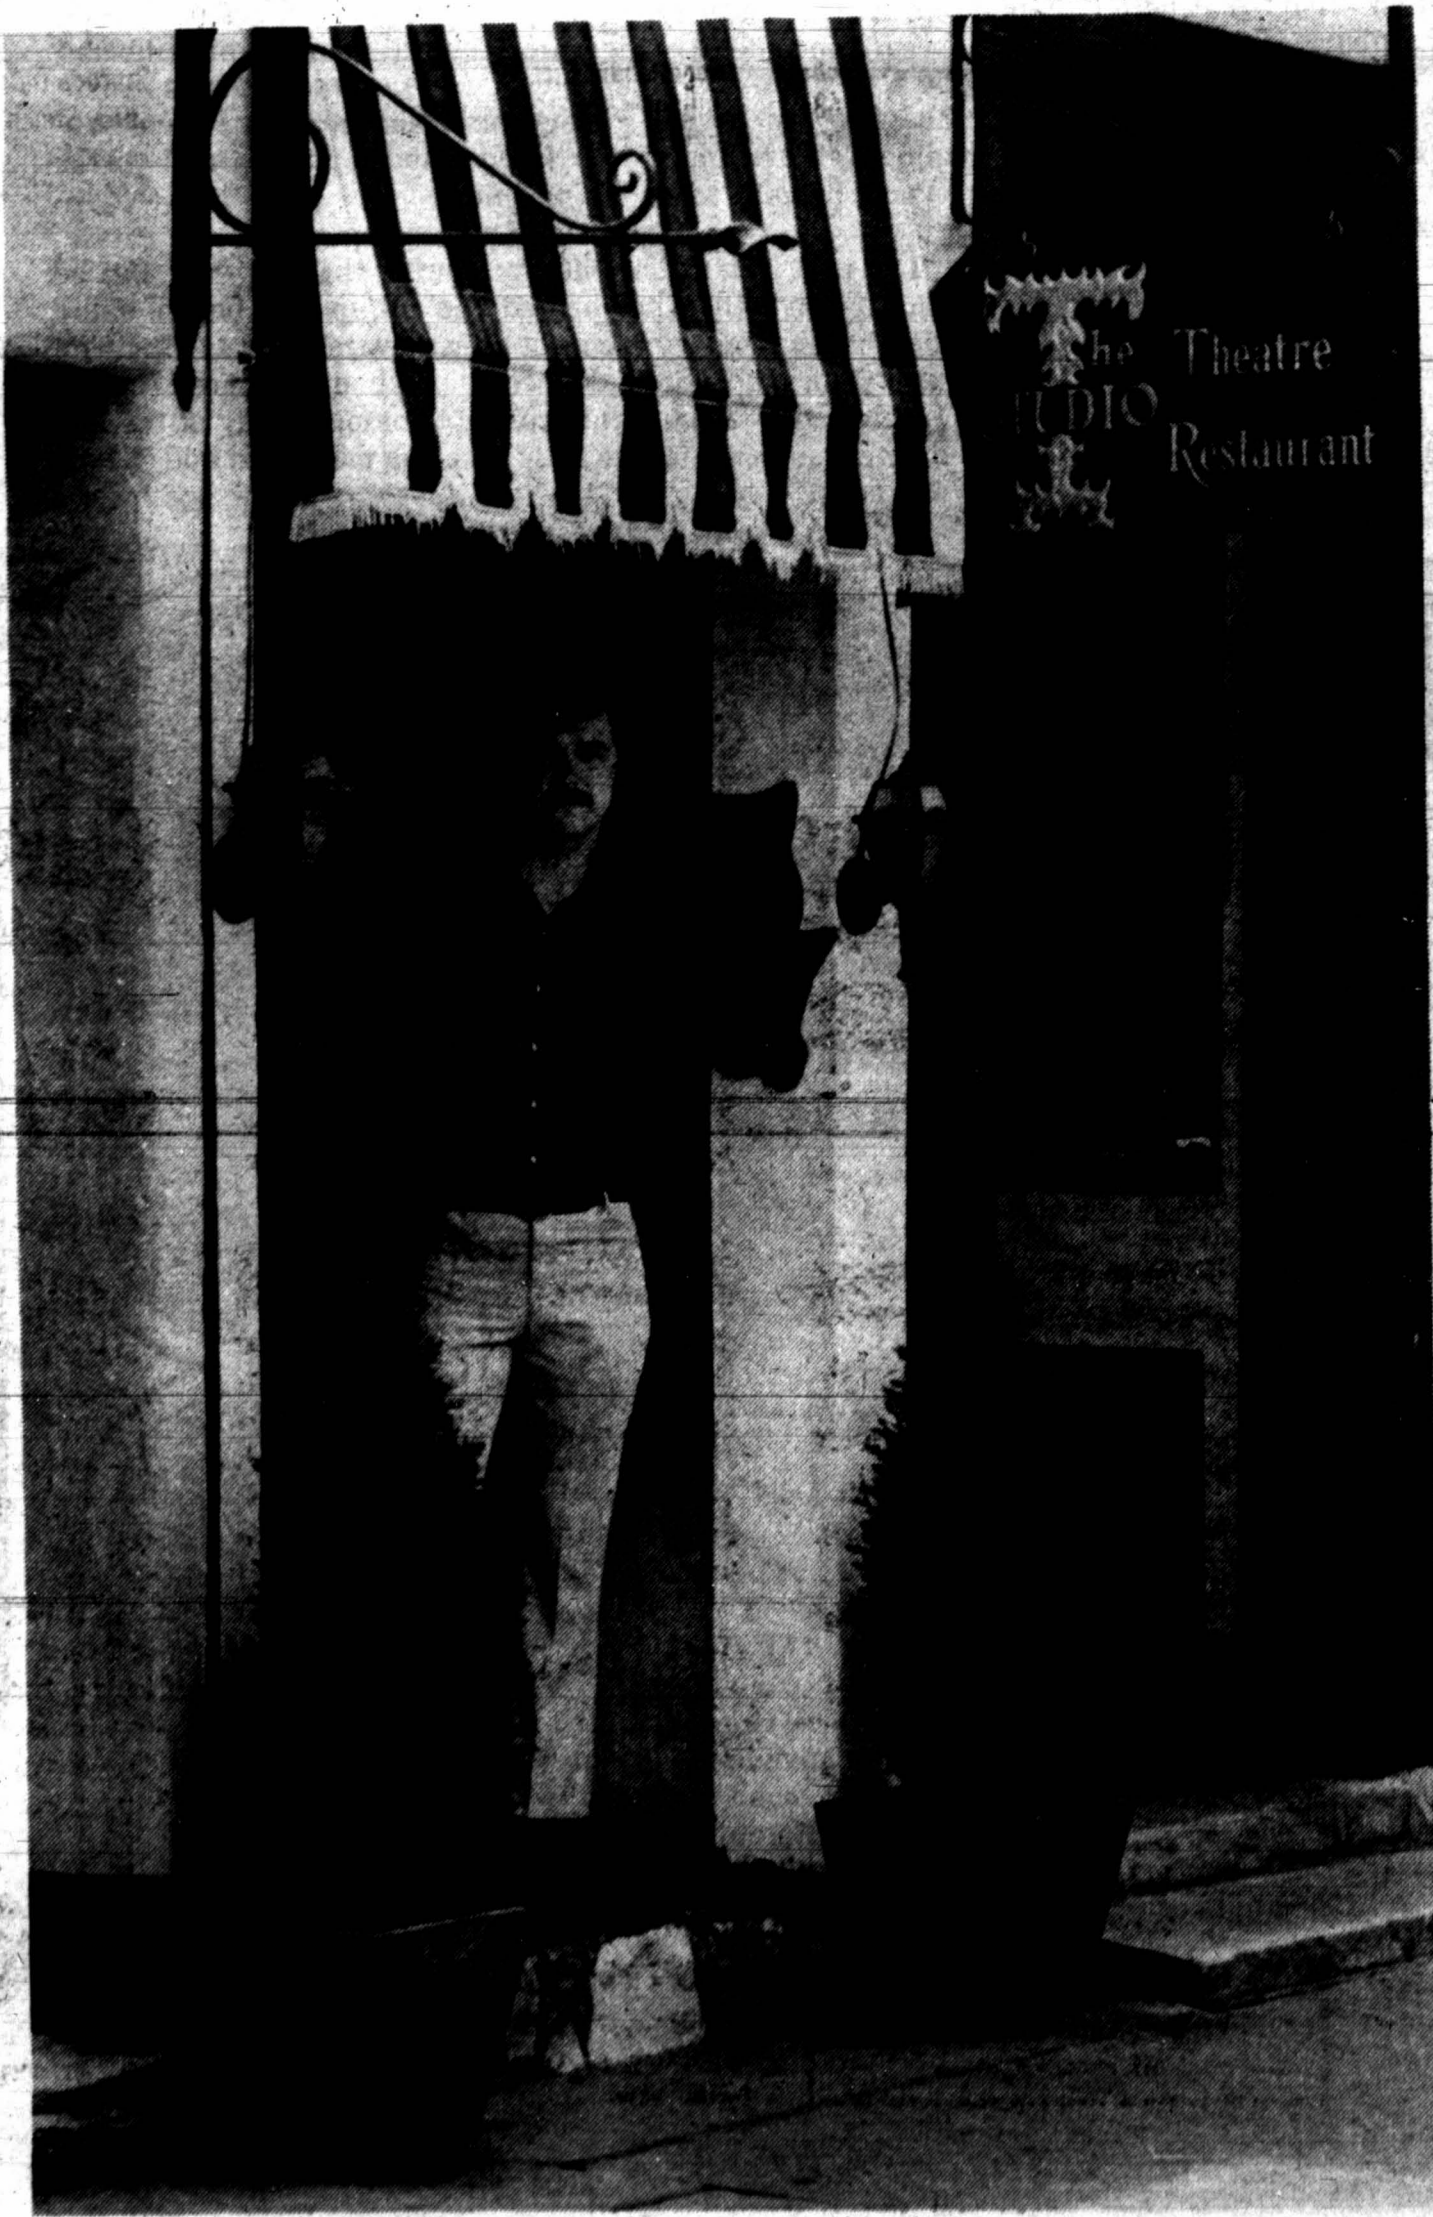

Bob feels that the Carmel Business Association ought to be "willing to stick their necks out on a few of these issues." He considers them the only voice of the businessman in the community, and adds that 50 per cent of the businesses are owned by members of the Association. "Businessmen have to care. If we let Carmel change in the way it's going, we aren't going to have our businesses any more. People won't come to Carmel, because it will no longer be Carmel."

Additional plans—or dreams—include the purchase and outfitting of a ferryboat to contain 20 shops and a restaurant, a floating shopping center, of small and selective boutiques. "It's going to be very spacious, not little cubicles. It will still have to look like a boat when it's finished," says Bob. After having been turned down by one possible mooring site, Bob is still hopeful about this dream and is holding off until the economy is more certain. "What we're afraid of is not being able to get 20 businessmen to go into business at this time."

But the plan, and others, are not forgotten. He is young, eager, enthusiastic. "I'm too restless to sit on this one thing (the Studio). I get very excited by being involved in other enterprises—like the ferryboat or operating a theatre in Salinas..."

A new breed, Bob Evans and his fellows. Young, involved, concerned. He sits there talking, in one of the Studio's director's chairs, good looking, but hair a bit too long for some; well-dressed, but certainly not Brooks Brothers; articulate, provocative, but not hampered by the vocabulary of convention. Newly-married, ambitious, forward-looking...very much the businessman of the future—and of today.

LIZBETH ANN HUNTER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard P. Hunter, and BRIAN MCGOOKIN, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Floyd Field, both of Carmel, were graduated June 5 from Principia Upper School, St. Louis, Missouri. A member of the newspaper staff, Liz was active in athletics, playing hockey, volleyball, and basketball. Brian, who played football and baseball his senior year, took part in student government for two years as a class and student body officer.

TO GRADUATE
U.C. SANTA CRUZ

Two Pebble Beach students will graduate Sunday from the University of California at Santa Cruz. Betzi B. Akerstrom and Shreve McLaren Archer III will both receive bachelors degrees from the University, Miss Akerstrom in anthropology and Mr. Archer in Psychology.

Also included in the commencement program will be Todd Philip Decker of Carmel who was awarded his B.A. in sociology from UCSC last December at the end of the Fall quarter.

AWARDED B.A.

Michael D. Taylor of Carmel, a 1961 graduate of Carmel High School, was awarded a Bachelor of Arts degree on June 4 by Golden Gate College in San Francisco. Taylor majored in business management and presently is in the executive training program of Standard Oil of California.

SAILOR RETURNS

Navy Petty Officer Third Class Todd W. Monroe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Monroe of Carmel, has returned to the U.S. aboard the aircraft carrier USS Ranger after more than seven months with the Seventh Fleet in the Western Pacific.

This was the carrier's fifth combat deployment in the Gulf of Tonkin.

TO GRADUATE

Walter Lee Pilot of Carmel will be graduated with honors Saturday from Oregon State University. To qualify, a student must have a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.25, with 4 points representing straight-A work.

DEAN'S LIST

Two Carmel residents, Elizabeth M. Harkins and Catherine O. Sparolini, have been named to the dean's honor list for the College of Agricultural and Environmental Sciences of the University of California at Davis.

BRUCE PERRY WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Bruce A. Perry, a Carmelite who will be graduated next week from Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, has been awarded a scholarship from the Institute on Comparative Political and Economic Systems at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

The Institute will be held this summer in Washington, after which Perry will enter the Gould School of Law at USC next fall. He will graduate with a double major in political science and history and recently distinguished himself by scoring in the 94th percentile of seniors across the nation who took the History Undergraduate Record Examination.

CARMELITES GRADUATE M.I.F.S.

Four Carmel residents received degrees recently from the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies. Awarded Masters degrees in education were Col. Eben Swift (Ret.) and Bowley Hoffman. Richard A. Woytak received his M.A. in history. In addition, a Bachelor of Arts degree was awarded to Mrs. Judith F. Ramsey in history.

The graduation ceremonies were held at the Institute on May 29.

Aken students to exhibit work

Girard Aken, Carmel artist who teaches oil painting at both Carmel Sunset Center and Carmel Valley Manor, will exhibit the works of his students at the Carmel Valley Manor. A preview is being held from 5-6 p.m. Wednesday of this week. The show will be open to the public from June 11-July 6.

A six week summer course in oil painting for beginners and advanced students will be held at both places under the direction of Mr. Aken for the Carmel Adult Educational system.

Those wishing to sign up, can telephone the Carmel Adult Education office at 624-3342 or the Girard Seascope Gallery in Carmel at 624-5139.

Classes will begin June 24 to July 29 inclusive.

One-man show at Lundborg

A one-man show of the paintings of Salinas artist Ardoth Terrill Hughes is now on view through June 27 at the offices of Irving Lundborg Division of Clark, Dodge and Co. at Sixth and Dolores in Carmel.

Mrs. Hughes is a graduate of Salinas Union High School and Hartnell College, and has studied under Peter Blos, Alexander Nepote, John and Pat Cunningham and other well-known artists. She has won awards at the Monterey County Fair, San Juan Bautista Art Festival and the Society of Western Artists competition at the DeYoung Museum in San Francisco.

In addition to the current Irving Lundborg exhibition, the works of Mrs. Hughes are being shown at the Carmel Art Association and the Wharf Gallery in Monterey.

Camera Club slide show next week

A color slide show on "Motion and Selective Focus in Photography" will be presented by the Padre Trails Camera Club next Thursday, June 18, in Brey Hall, Carmel High School at 8:00 p.m.

The show is from the Photochrome Club of San Francisco.

Members will submit slides on nature subjects for the club contest. Also, there will be a special contest for candid shots taken on the May field trip.

The meeting is open to anyone interested. For further information call Thomas Hardy, 375-8586, or address Padre Trails Camera Club, Box 4994, Carmel, 93921.

DOROTHY CUTTER AT THE EASEL: The California artist's work is currently being shown at Zantman Galleries through June 26

Art, theatre institutes at M.P.C.

Three art institutes and a theatre institute will be offered at Monterey Peninsula College this summer. The art institutes have been designed to compress 60 hours of instruction into nine days instead of the traditional six weeks.

Two institutes—an institute in design instructed by Richard Bibler, nationally syndicated cartoonist and a regular member of the college's art faculty, and an institute in drawing taught by Nelson—will be offered in Session I, June 22 to July 2. These will include daily studio lessons, 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m., plus three evening seminars, 7 to 9 p.m.

In a second session, July 6 to 16, distinguished artist Alex Gonzales will conduct an institute in painting on the same daily and evening seminar schedule as in the first session.

The theatre institute will run for seven weeks, during the first six of which the students will rehearse and construct sets for a major production to be staged in the seventh. The total program of theater activities will include acting classes instructed daily by Morgan Stock, 9 a.m. to noon; theater workshop, instructed daily by Ruth Jordan Allan, 7 to 10 p.m.; and play production, instructed daily by Ross Durfee, 7 to 10 p.m.

All institutes earn students units of college credit. An adult fee is required of persons 21 years of age and over, and non-residents, with the exception of military personnel and dependents, will be charged $14 per unit.

Brochures describing the courses are available in MPC's administration building, as are application forms and registration instructions. Mail registration will be conducted through June 5, after which on-campus registration will not be conducted until June 17-19.

Ziegler photos at PG Museum

Jim Ziegler, Carmel Valley photographer, is currently exhibiting a selection of his work at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History through June 30.

He has been a Carmel Valley resident since 1956, when he moved here from Japan where he was with the American Express Company. An avid horseman and hiker, Ziegler spends much time exploring and photographing the Valley area and the Santa Lucia Mountains.

He also has photographs presently showing at the Friends of Photography exhibit at the Sunset Center.

Do you want to believe in God?

You can. Not just because of what someone says about God. But because of what you yourself can learn and prove about divine Love.

Like the woman who was instantly freed by an assailant one night — when she turned to God in prayer. Or the entertainer whose back was healed through prayer after he was told he couldn't walk without surgery.

These individuals found that divine Love meets even the most challenging human needs . . . that powerful spiritual laws are available for anyone to use.

You can learn more of these laws by reading this week's Bible Lesson.

Record 1,040 sea otters counted in aerial survey

A total of 1,040 sea otters, the greatest number yet observed in California, has been counted in an aerial survey by the Department of Fish and Game.

The count was made May 6-7 during what biologists Mel Odemar and Kenneth C. Wilson described as good weather for aerial census work because a high fog eliminated all glare.

The flights were made in the DFG's twin-engine Cessna Skymaster and covered the coast from Ano Nuevo to Cayucos.

The previous high count of 1,014 otters was made in June 1969. Once believed near extinction as the result of their wide-spread slaughter by fur traders during the 18th and 19th centuries, the California sea otter herd has slowly increased during the past 50 years. The sea otter is classified as an endangered species and is fully protected by law. It may not be taken or possessed for any reason.

Most of the otters in the recent count — 660 or 63.5 percent were observed within the Sea Otter Game Refuge between Point Pinos and Cambria. A total of 214 otters was spotted north of the refuge, mainly in the Monterey area, and 165 south of the refuge.

New C.R.T.A. officers to be installed next Wednesday

The Monterey County division of the California Retired Teachers' Association will hold its bi-monthly luncheon meeting on Wednesday, June 17, at 2:15 p.m. at the Monterey Elks' Club, 150 Mar Vista Drive.

The following officers have been nominated for the coming term: July 1, June 30, 1972 and will be installed at this meeting:

President, Mrs. Andrew F. Anderson; first vice president, Aloys Nicholson; second vice president, Paul Cradler; recording secretary, Miss Nell Cravens; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Belle L.

Riebel; treasurer and financial secretary, Mrs. Jemima E. Davies.

Mrs. Bernice Imlay of the Monterey County CRTA will speak on "Handicapped? Isn't Everybody?" Mrs. Imlay, a member of the governor's committee for the Employment of the Handicapped, recently has returned from the president's conference in Washington, D.C. on this subject.

All retired teachers and their guests are invited to attend the luncheon. Reservations may be made by June 13 with Mrs. Calvin Everett, 375-6943.

Cookies for the Fort Ord Hospital patients will be welcome.

Carmel Realtors trek to Anaheim

Our "Artists in Action" program last Saturday was its usual success. Let me briefly mention a few of the many fascinating exhibits.

Carmel Graphics was its usual lively spot with activities ranging from etching to serigraphy. Folkdancers kept the patio really stepping, and folksing with guitar and flute accompaniment gave the artists an inspirational background for their creative endeavors. "Punch & Judy" proved to be a favorite for the kids. Step-by-step demonstrations of beginning painting, as well as demonstrations in portrait painting, cartooning, stitchery, and pottery, were given throughout the afternoon.

Our day was climaxed by our talented youngsters of the Children's Experimental Theater. Their performance was an exciting addition to "Artists in Action". Whether on the Sunset stage or at the Forest Theater, the children are proving to be veteran troupers.

So much for last Saturday. (If you missed it, I hope you'll make the next "Artists in Action" on July 4). Now let's take a look at what's coming up at the Center.

Dr. Greenberg will present one more Saturday afternoon Record Hour on June 20 before our Bach Festival musicians begin to arrive for rehearsal. Soon every nook and cranny at Sunset will be bursting with music. Individual tickets are still available in Studio 3.

George and Inger Wallace will present their non-tourist view of Mexico on Friday evening, June 19. This program promises to be not only a rewarding educational experience, but a truly new approach to gaining cultural insight into the great traditions and colorful history of our Mexican neighbors.

Mr. Wallace first began his professional career in photography with Ansel Adams and Minor White at the California School of Fine Arts in San Francisco. He later became a professor of photography at San Jose State College. In 1961, he and his family made their first trip to Mexico, and since then they have covered more than 40,000 miles of the country. I feel that what George and Inger have learned about the rural life in Mexico will be of great interest to those who attend their presentation. Tickets may be reserved at Abinante's, or at the Sunset Center Box Office on the evening of the performance.

I am looking for volunteers in the community who have slides or movies of their travels that they would be willing to show in a new "Fun with Films" series at the Center. If you are interested in giving such a presentation, or if you would like any other information about our activities at Sunset, please call me at 624-3996.

Final performances this weekend of '3 Bags Full'

Final performances of the Community Theatre's successful run of "Three Bags Full" will be held this coming Friday and Saturday evenings, at the Circle Theatre, Casanova between 8th and 9th, at 8:30 p.m.

This will mark the ninth week of the uproarious farce comedy by Jerome Chodorov, delineating the zany complications in a turn-of-the-century household when mistaken identity and switching of luggage occurs.

Directed by Michael Keller, the cast includes Bill Scholefield, Joyce Malickoff, Layne Littlepage, Roy Baxter, Jean McBride, Bob Lotz, John Doolittle, John Sullivan and Florence Larsen.

HAWKINS SINGERS HERE SATURDAY

The Edwin Hawkins Singers will perform Saturday at the Monterey County Fairgrounds (Pattee Arena), beginning at 7 p.m. The singers, well known for their hit song "Oh Happy Day," are being brought to the Monterey area by Young Life in Monterey County.

AN ORDINANCE REGULATING
USE OF AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE
CALLING DEVICES
THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES
ORDAIN as follows:

Section 1. That the Municipal Code of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea is amended by the addition of the following Division in Part VII:
DIVISION 9. AUTOMATIC
TELEPHONE CALLING DEVICES
1050. TELEPHONE EMERGENCY MESSAGES. It shall be unlawful for any person to use or cause to be used any electrical or mechanical device or attachment to any telephone that automatically reproduces any taped or otherwise recorded message to report a police or fire emergency to the Police or Fire Department, without the prior written consent of the Chief of that department.

1050.1 TELEPHONE AD-VERTISING MESSAGES. It shall be unlawful for any person to use or cause to be used any electrical or mechanical device or attachment to any telephone which will, mechanically, electrically, or by any other means, dial intrastate calls to different telephone numbers in sequence and transmit a recorded message to any person within the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea without the prior written consent of the persons called.
Section 2. EFFECTIVE DATE. This ordinance shall become effective thirty days after its final passage and adoption.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this 3rd day of June, 1970.

APPROVED:
(ss.) BARNEY LAIOLO

CERTIFICATION OF
CITY CLERK

I, HUGH BAYLESS, the undersigned,
City Clerk of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, California, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of Ordinance No. 210 C.S., which was given its First Reading at a Regular Meeting of said City Council on the 6th day of May, 1970, and finally adopted at a Regular Meeting of the said Council on the 3rd day of June, 1970.

I further certify that upon its passage the foregoing Ordinance was signed by the Mayor of said City and attested by the City Clerk thereof.

DATED this 4th day of June, 1970.
HUGH BAYLESS,
City Clerk

WHAT IS SO RARE AS A DAY IN JUNE?

In Carmel 1970 it could be - a two-bedroom home south of Ocean Ave., on an oak-studded 60'x100' lot, with a charming paneled guest house and garage, for $36,000 or

It could be a deliciously secluded little hideaway in midtown Carmel, architect-designed, custom-crafted of redwood, tile and glass - two bedrooms, two garden baths, a fun and functional kitchen - a rarity indeed. $42,500.

Lines From Lois

"Hey, Mom! We're Home!"

Is your home big enough to provide space for your children's at-home activities and give them their own bedroom space for homework and private retreat? Is there room for wheel toys, pets, parties (and a grown-up retreat for you)? Are the kitchen and work centers adequate for ease and comfort in caring for family needs? Check these out if you're thinking of moving:

$63,000 IN THE COUNTRY CLUB

4 bedrooms close to club, schools, shopping, golf. 32-foot lanai room with its own fireplace overlooks beautiful, fenced garden with large paved area for children or green-thumbers, 18-foot dining room for formal entertaining, great kitchen! Just listed too.

$68,500 IN DEL MONTE FAIRWAYS

Ideal family home overlooking the golf courses in one of the Peninsula's finest family neighborhoods. 5 bedrooms, enormous family room plus a huge party room. No trouble keeping them at home here!

$69,500 IN CARMEL

In the sun belt near River School, 4 bedrooms and a wonderful family room for entertaining by either the younger or older groups in your family - or use the patio and outdoor barbecue. Full of charm, this ranch-style home once belonged to a famous movie star!

$79,500 IN CARMEL

Built only 6 years ago in Handley Hills on a choice site selected for its outstanding view of the ocean and Pt. Lobos. Almost 3600 square feet in this 4 bedroom, 3 bath home. 30-foot family room; one bedroom has separate entrance. Gorgeous living room. Just listed and delightful to show.

$84,000 - SWIMMING POOL!

3 bedrooms and family room, but the kids and their friends will spend most of the summer in the pool. On a secluded private road in the mid-Valley on 2½ acres, this fine almost new home is the shake-roof, beam-ceiling, type you love. (New listing!)

$85,000 - CARMEL VALLEY

Interesting redwood home on a secluded acre of handsome oaks, especially designed for congenial family living. It was planned to take maximum advantage of the Valley indoor-outdoor weather. Two fireplaces, and the one in the family activities room is particularly stunning.

$99,000 - CARMEL

One of the best family homes in all Carmel, located on Randall Way and just a couple of blocks from Carmel High. 4 bedrooms, one of which is really a separate apartment which your teen daughter would love - and that grown-up son, beloved grandmother, foreign student, or housekeeper could have the separate guest house. You'll love it!

$115,000 - CARMEL VALLEY

Possibly one of the most perfect family homes ever built! 6 bedrooms in wonderfully well organized areas for separateness or togetherness as the mood suits. Ideal kitchen and work areas. The acre of oaks provides space for the pony, a family garden (you should see the punkun patch!), a bicycle house, pets galore. Contemporary design, yet the rooms have the feel and look of old-fashioned comfort and several age levels could happily live together here.

$129,500 - CARMEL VALLEY

Nine acres on which to roam, to climb the oak trees, to raise pets and vegetables, to keep horses, to preserve as an ecological unit. Hard to find this much acreage in such a good location near schools, the village, and community recreation, and hard to find a better ranch style family house than this big 4-bedroom home with one of the best family rooms anywhere.

Last week we discussed a few aspects of summer care for dogs among them proper grooming, flea and tick control and availability of water. We feel that "summerizing" your dog deserves special attention, because thousands of dogs suffer terribly during the hot months, and additional thousands die needless deaths because of their owners' unawareness of their pets' special needs during the 'Dog Days.'

We are not exaggerating when we say that thousands of dogs die—they do, and they do so as a tragic ending to what began as a happy car ride with a family member. They die of suffocation and heat prostration in cars that become like ovens under the rays of the summer sun.

The dog is unique in his ability—or lack of ability—to cool his body. Unlike most animals, including man, he lacks sweat glands on his body. Most of the dog's natural heat-regulating process is carried out by moisture evaporation through his breath and tongue. When an overheated dog pants, you can actually see droplets of water fall from his tongue. Beyond this rather inefficient medium, he does comparatively little evaporative cooling on the other areas of his body. Because of this shortcoming, he is especially prone to heat prostration.

In a situation where humans or horses or cattle would be perspiring from every one of millions of separate pore openings all over the body, the dog can only pant mightily, and too often the panting is not rapid enough to do the job. Heat stroke follows.

The number one cause of heat stroke is being left in a parked car in hot summer weather. You have all heard warnings about dognappers; therefore, you probably lock the car in which your dog remains. However, you have probably heard equally strong admonitions about leaving the window open an inch or so to provide air for the dog. But a steel-bodied automobile parked in an air temperature of 85 degrees, in direct sun, can easily build up an internal temperature of over 100 degrees. An hour or two in such a parked car will raise the car's inside temperature past the point of tolerance—to say 110 or 112 degrees—and sad shoppers and tourists return to find their dog either prostrate from the heat or dead.

Prevention is simple. Either leave your dog coolly at home in very hot weather when you know he will be forced to wait in the car, or be absolutely certain to park in shade and leave adequate ventilation. Remember that shade at 10:00 a.m. is probably not going to be shade at noon. You may have to move the car or park in a completely shaded spot. You can, of course, take the dog with you whenever possible. Sometimes it is better to hitch his leash to an outdoor spot for a few minutes than to leave him in the car. Certainly, anything is better than causing suffering or death to your beloved pet.

Should you be in the unhappy position of finding your dog prostrate, there are simple, immediate and effective measures one can take. Since the dog, who will be collapsed, breathing heavily, panting and drooling, is suffering from too much heat, the reverse is the treatment. He should be immersed in cold water as quickly as possible. You can pour quantities of cold water over him while someone else is filling a tub in which to immerse the dog. He can be dipped in the ocean or river—anything cold and wet. A fan can be turned on him while the cold water treatment is continued. Only his head should be kept out of the water.

The dog's body will feel hot while he is prostrate. When he begins to feel cool to the touch, you can stop the cold water treatment and let him rest quietly. In the meantime, it's a good idea to check with a vet and apprise him of the situation. He may prescribe medication and he will certainly recommend further care for the dog.

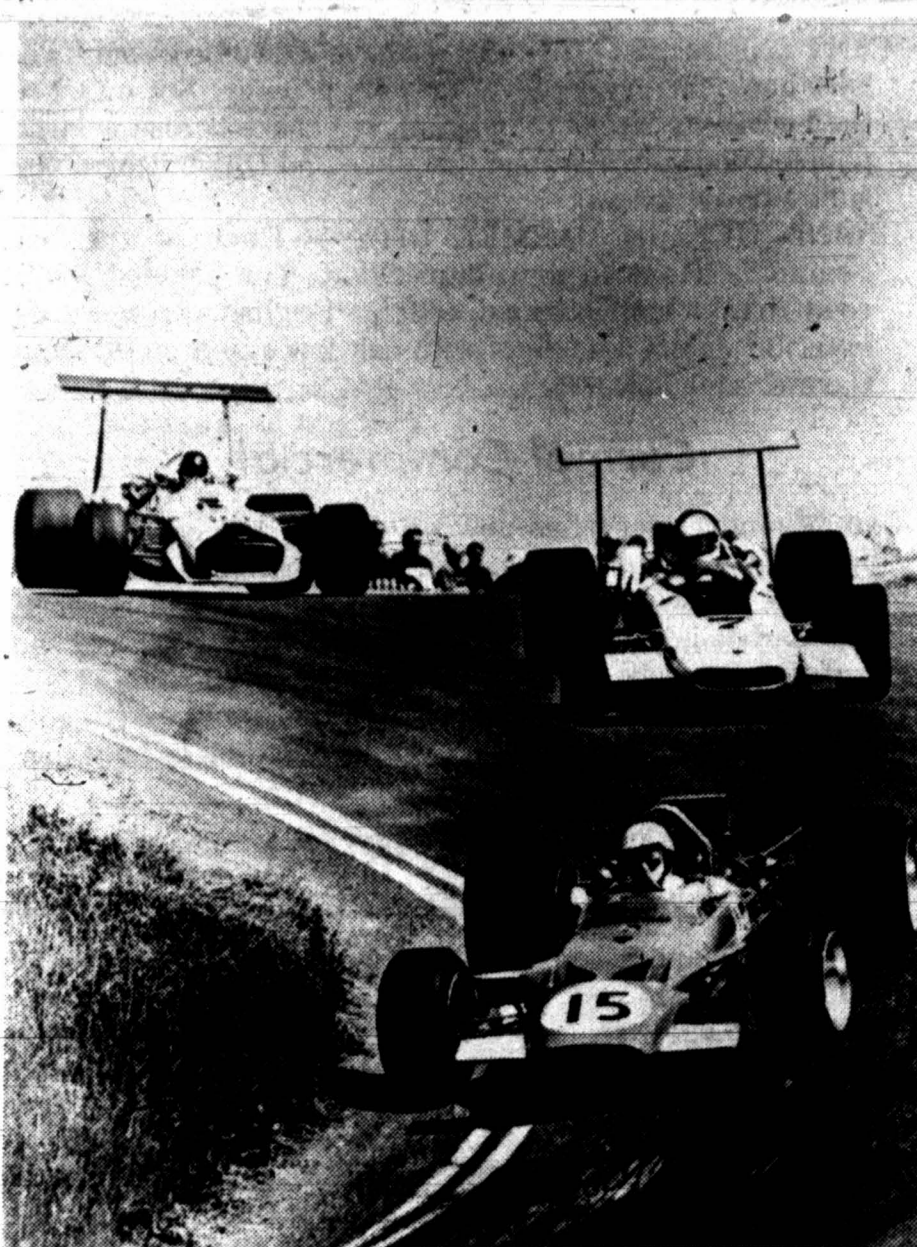

If unchecked, heat prostration will kill your pet. And do not think it happens only to dogs in parked cars. It happens to dogs who are chained out in the direct sun; to dogs romping too strenuously in hot weather; to dogs forced to exert themselves beyond what their normal innate sense urges. Most dogs know when they're hot and tired and ready to quit. Their masters are the ones who urge them on with the game of ball, or galloping beside a bicycle or horse past the point where the dog would, of his own volition, fall into a shady patch of grass and rest.

It is good practice not to exercise your pet in hot midday summer weather. If you usually take him out to run during those hours, you should alter your schedule so that he can exercise in early morning or evening hours, before the sun reaches its peak or after it sets. Also, the dog's food and feeding time may have to be adjusted to summertime weather.

Many dogs "go off their feed" during the really hot days. Nature is telling them to do this: humans don't want a steak and potatoes meal when the thermometer is above 90. Your dog will appreciate being fed in the cooler hours, and he will appreciate a lighter diet as well. You can cut down on the quantities of carbohydrates (meat or kibble) and increase light but nourishing foods such as eggs and cottage cheese. And, above all, be absolutely certain that the dog has all the cool, clean water he can want at all times.

One of the worst things you can do is give a dog a drink when he's hot and tired. Cold water under those circumstances acts as a shock to his system. If water is always available, the dog will drink whenever he chooses and won't have to gulp down too much water at one time.

A few safeguards and a little common sense will do much to ensure that your dog's summer is as enjoyable as your own. He will want to share as many of your activities as possible, including your vacation, and there's no reason he shouldn't.
